DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 28 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. There is no antecedent basis for "the recess."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 15-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by DE 100 31 979.

DE 199 31 979 discloses an attachable rod ignition coil comprising:

- a socket for a spark plug [3, figure 1];
- an ignition coil component attachable to the spark plug;
- a metal adapter [8] with spark plug receptacle for fastening on a spark plug [2]; and
- a metal electrically conductive shock absorbing element [9, 12] mounted between the ignition coil component and the adapter and/or the adapter and the spark plug socket.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 17, 21, 23-26 and 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DE 199 31 979 in view of Reinmueller et al. [US 6,491,531 B1].

DE 199 31 979 discloses an attachable rod ignition coil comprising:

- a socket for a spark plug [3, figure 1];
- an ignition coil component attachable to the spark plug;
- a metal adapter [8] with spark plug receptacle for fastening on a spark plug [2]; and
- a metal electrically conductive shock absorbing element [9, 12] mounted between the ignition coil component and the adapter and/or the adapter and the spark plug socket.

DE 199 31 979 discloses the instant claimed invention except for the adapter being displaceable relative thereto along a line of travel.

Reinmueller et al. discloses an adapter [11] for an ignition system comprising, a first socket [34], a first spring [42], a second socket [37] and a second spring [47], wherein the adapter being movable.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to use the movable adapter teaching for DE 199 31 979, as suggested by Reinmueller et al., for the purpose of improving shock absorbing.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to use the socket and additional spring [shock absorbing element] design of Reinmueller et al. in DE 199 31 979 for the purpose of providing holding means for the ignition coil component and the spark plug and improving shock absorbing.

Regarding claims 17, the specific type of shock absorbing and the material use for the adapter would have been an obvious design consideration based on the intended application/environment use and for the purpose of improving conductivity.

Regarding claims 29, DE 199 31 979 discloses the shock absorbing element in the form of a pressure spring which may be inserted into a recess of the ignition coil component and a recess of the metal adapter, wherein the pressure spring may undergo deformation.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 18-20, 22 and 27 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 28 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 15-29 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO

Art Unit: 2832

MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
